

INDIANA'S LEGISLATURE—1.

BY ONE WHO WAS THERE.

It much that is bad has crept into our American system of representative legislatures, so has much that is good been retained, and whether the good or the bad predominates is largely a matter of time and place. The opinions even of those most advantageously situated to know the facts will vary according as such observers are inclined to take pessimistic or optimistic views of what they see, or imagine they see, going on about them. Whatever is said or written about the practical workings of any political institution must always be taken for what it is worth and with a considerable grain of allowance, for it never expresses the full truth and is more or less consciously colored by the natural bent and acquired prejudice of the speaker or writer.

The general public obtains its information and forms its opinions almost exclusively from newspaper reporters, student reformers and common rumor, and while the result is seldom far from right in particular instances it cannot be said that any individual has an exact comprehension of the whole truth. Reporters have to take chances on what they can get from the sources of information that may be open to them; they must do their work hastily and are peculiarly liable to be misled for sinister or other purposes. The reformer hardly ever knows what he is talking about and the information he acquires in the seclusion of his study is never verified by any adequate experience. The practical politician, who alone knows the facts, never writes about them except with large reservations and any testimony he may give must be weighed and scrutinized with great care. It is quite likely to be true that the composite picture of a public man as it is more or less lazily formed by common rumor is the most reliable guide to voters and the fact that they do rely upon such a characterization may account for their paucity of mistakes.

A great share of the laws affecting directly and indirectly the interests of the citizens of Indiana are passed at Indianapolis in the biennial sessions of the general assembly. In theory this body is constituted of representative men from the different legislative districts. The state is apportioned into districts sufficiently small to enable the voters to have personal knowledge of the legislative candidates and the theory is that the electors of each division will be led by their own important interests to send to the general assembly only men in whose integrity and ability they repose implicit confidence. The Indiana constitution is based upon the presumption that a great majority of the citizens of the commonwealth will be impelled by self-interest to vote honestly and impartially for men who are honest and competent. In practice there is often a lamentable departure from this principle, and not alone in Indiana. A system of political manipulation has grown up outside of the constitution and by its operation we occasionally see the worst man in a community chosen, rather than the one best adapted to represent the people. Indeed, it seldom happens that the best qualified men are elected to the general assembly or to any office of public trust. The people permit themselves to be cheated by a band of unscrupulous tricksters who make politics a trade and by their chicanery have given the very word politics a hateful meaning.

Many an honest Hoosier entertains serious doubt whether the legislature is worth its cost. Many an Indiana editor has gravely put forth the impractical proposition to increase the intervals between sessions. But seldom do we hear a word calculated to inspire confidence in the body to whose wisdom and faithfulness are entrusted our dearest political affairs. And yet it is entirely erroneous to regard the Indiana general assembly, taken as a whole, as a bad body at any session, or to think that the bad members ever really outnumber the good. The bad members are more active and noisier than the good ones and the bad acts are more conspicuous and more talked about than the others; the perspective is thus destroyed and the bad, being always in the foreground, overlaps and hides the meritorious. In any question of right and wrong, presented clearly and distinguished from other issues, there would never be a doubt as to the result of a vote in any Indiana legislature.

It is a great thing to represent thirty or forty thousand people in a delegate body. A member of the British parliament does no more. The popular fancy, as a rule, fails to render justice to the loyal work done by Indiana assembly men in shaping the affairs of state and in directing the vast and complex institutions that go to make up a great commonwealth. But let a hundred and fifty men of diverse occupations, most of them in need of money, many of them not scrupulously honest, all of them elected by constituents too indifferent to hold them to strict responsibility for their votes, be put into a position of great temporary power, where their actions affect the rights and welfare of great corporations and wealthy individuals, where the chances for corruption are great and where the temptation is strong and constant to raise partisan politics above the general welfare, and there will be inevitably much viciousness, moral cowardice, personal and political dishonesty, actual bribery and disregard of official oaths, even in a session of two months.

The adverse impression created by the general suspicion of such things is infinitely intensified when some member returns to his constituents and proceeds to erect buildings that he could not have dreamed of owning prior to his sixty-one days at the capital at six dollars per day and pay his own board, or when some other member places his partisan zeal above his oath of office and obstructs the public business (at great expense to the taxpayers) by withdrawing in order to break a quorum. Such acts are treasonable, for they lessen the confidence of the people in their government and to that extent weaken the republic and give comfort to its enemies. The fact that another member comes back poorer in purse than when he went away, or that still another scorns the lash and votes against a measure of his own party because his conscience will not permit him to support it under his oath, can never counterbalance the harm that is done by the wicked conduct of the venal and unscrupulous.

It is the purpose of this paper, and of those that may, perhaps, follow, to comment in a general way upon the inner workings of the Indiana legislature as seen during several sessions. It is not intended to paint the picture any darker than truthfulness requires, nor is it expected to accomplish any great reforms, however much reform may be needed. The fact is recognized that the standard of legislative morals is higher as the years go by and the prospect is that it will keep pace with the gradual awakening of the public mind to the necessity of having wise and faithful representatives.

Walkerton's Rural Delivery.

Thompson Turner, postmaster at Walkerton, has succeeded in getting an order for the establishment of two additional mail routes from his office and they will be opened within ninety days. Route number one will be served by Merton S. Wolfe and will run east to the Morris church and Kilgore corners in Marshall county. Number two, carried by B. F. Thompson, extends north across the Kankakee and passing Fish Lake. Number three goes south and west toward Donaldson and Groveton and Wm. S. LeRoy is the carrier.

A Queer Marker.

In preparing a survey of the land to be annexed to Mishavaka, Engineer Rosecrans the other day came across a peculiar object south of town. In measuring eastward he and his assistants found that an elk's horn had been used in place of the usual stone to designate a certain corner on a line between properties. It had been placed there many years ago, but was in a good state of preservation. Elk horns are considered too valuable now to allow their use for "corner stones."

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and never used anything that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, Hall County, Ga. "As a physician I have prescribed it with the best results." If food remains undigested in your stomach it decays. To prevent this by dieting means starvation. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer neither dyspepsia nor starvation. J. W. Hess, Druggist.

Kaffir Corn.

Peter Swartz put out one and a half acres of Kaffir corn this year with profitable results. He says he got as much feed for his stock from this acre and a half as he could have realized from five or six acres of timothy hay. Kaffir corn is said to be excellent food for stock. It might be worth while for more of our farmers to look into the merits of Kaffir corn.—Walkerton Independent.

Better Than Ever.

Those who have not heard the records of the Columbia Phonograph company is now supplying have no conception of the changes and improvements that have recently been made. The Indian and the Northwest.

A handsomely illustrated book just issued, bound in cloth and containing 115 pages of interesting historical data relating to the settlement of the great Northwest, with fine half tone engravings of Black Hawk, Sitting Bull, Red Cloud and other noted chiefs; Custer's battleground and ten colored map plates showing location of the various tribes dating back of 1600. A careful review of the book impresses one that it is a valued contribution to the history of these early pioneers, and a copy should be in every library. Price, 50 cents per copy. Mailed postage prepaid upon receipt of this amount by W. B. Kniskern, 22 Fifth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

To The Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better. Three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, RALPH S. MEYERS, 64-Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by J. W. Sudden Death in a Toy.

ALEXANDRIA, Ind., Nov. 20—While playing soldier last evening and using an old nitroglycerine can as a drum, Charles Ott, age thirteen, was instantly killed and horribly mangled by the explosion of remnants of nitroglycerine left in the can when it was discarded. Both arms and legs of the boy were blown off and his face was torn away. The can had been kicking about the alley a couple of weeks before the lad had picked it up for a plaything.

THE PEOPLE KNEW HIM.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

George Washington made and sold flour, and every barrel of flour in the market branded "G. Washington, Mount Vernon," sold without delay. No question was ever raised as to quality or weight.

Benson's Plaster sells on its reputation everywhere. All the buyer wants to be certain of is that the plaster offered him really is Benson's, and not a worthless imitation of it or substitute for it.

A plaster is the best form of external remedy, and Benson's is the best plaster; 5,000 physicians and druggists, and a multitude of people no man can number, have settled that. "You can trust it," they say.

Coughs, colds, lame back, lumbago, muscular stiffness and rheumatism, troubles of the liver and kidneys, influenza or grip, pneumonia, and all other diseases open to external treatment, are at once relieved and cured by Benson's Plaster.

Do not assume that Belladonna, Capsicum or Strengthening plasters are "just as good as" Benson's. They are vastly inferior.—No other plaster is as good as Benson's.

In competition with the best-known plasters of Europe and America, Benson's have received fifty-five highest awards.

For sale by all druggists or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States, on receipt of 25c. each.

KLONDIKE REPUBLIC

Fishy Story of a Plot to Set Up a New Nation.

Government of Northwest Territory to be Overthrown by Five Thousand Miners Who are said to be Armed and Equipped for the Purpose.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 18.—An unconfirmed story has reached this city from Skaguay, Alaska, under date of Nov. 5, telling of a huge conspiracy existing in Dawson and extending to Skaguay, Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, for the overthrow of the local government of the Northwest territory and the establishing of a republic, with Dawson as its capital.

According to the details of the story, arms, ammunition, and provisions have been taken in over the railroad and cached at strategic points. Prominent American residents of Skaguay are said to be ringleaders in the conspiracy. Miners to the number of 5,000 are said to await the summons to arms, ready to fight for the independence from dominion rule of the gold fields, camps, and towns. The plan is to overpower the mounted police, arrest the civil authorities, and take the government into their own hands. The rigors of the arctic winters would give the insurgents six months' immunity from attack by Canadian or British troops, and the adventurous archoconspirators hope for intervention or outside assistance by the time the melting of ice and snow will permit the invasion of their isolated republic.

It is further related that a hurried conference, lasting until midnight, was held at Skaguay Nov. 5, at which were present Captain Corrigan of the Northwest mounted police, who had arrived from across the Canadian border late that evening. Judge Brown of the United States district court, United States Attorney Frederich, and Major Hovey, commanding the United States troops at Skaguay, attended the meeting. This was the last of several hasty consultations between the civil and military representatives of the two powers in relation to the mysterious transportation of supplies into the interior, and the rumors of a conspiracy to lead the miners in a revolt against the Canadian government in the Northwest Territory. Those present maintained subsequently the strictest silence concerning the new evidence laid before them, and their evident anxiety helped to confirm the rumors of conspiracy.

Captain Corrigan took a train back across the border the next morning, while Marshall Shoupe embarked on the first steamer for Seattle, which port he reached several days ago. The object of his visit was, presumably, to confer by telegraph with the authorities at Washington.

An Invasion of Germans.

GUTHRIE, Ok., Nov. 20—Forty thousand acres of land near Navajo, Greer county, Oklahoma, have been sold to a representative of a colony of Germans of whom 1,000 families are coming from Germany to locate, each getting forty acres.

PLYMOUTH EVIDENCE

It's Easy to Confirm What is Said by Plymouth People.

A great name has been made for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills on account of their action in renewing worn out nerve tissue and building up pale and thin blooded people. All over the country where they are known men and women report the same results as Mr. V. A. Gandy of West Garro St., Plymouth, Ind., who says:—"Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are beyond a doubt good nerve tonic. In one instance in the house where the patient was bloodless, weak, depressed and nervous the medicine we got at J. W. Hess's Drug Store acted as a fine tonic making good blood, giving good strength and nerve steadiness. We are glad to be able to recommend the medicine."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N.Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D. are on every package. 5

SLAKE CHARMING

Is not a popular occupation. Most women shrink from the sight of a snake and would faint at the touch of one. But these same women run greater risks than the snake charmer. How many women allow disease to fasten on them and slowly to crush out their strength.

Womanly diseases should never be allowed to undermine the health. Female weakness, bearing-down pains, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headache, nervousness, and other womanly ailments, curable by medicine, are promptly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I deem it my duty to express my deep, heartfelt gratitude to you for having been the means under providence of restoring me to health," writes Mrs. Oscar Brown, of Oxford, Granville Co., N.C. "For two years I suffered with female weakness, headache, neuralgia in various parts of the system, and after using four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, three of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of 'Pleasant Pellets,' also 'Lotion Talcum' and one box of 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories,' I am cured."

If you are led to the purchase of "Favorite Prescription" because of its remarkable cures of other women, do not accept a substitute.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send at once one-cent stamps the expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

AMERICAN HUSTLERS

European Industries Being Pushed to the Wall.

Uncle Sam's Energy and Ambition Alarm Traders and Manufacturers Abroad and Threaten Keener Competition than Any Heretofore Experienced.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The Daily Chronicle publishes today an interview with Ebenezer Parkes, M. P., dealing with the results of his recent visit to the United States. Parkes was reluctant to anticipate his formal report, but he confessed that British traders were likely to experience more severe competition than any with which they were yet acquainted. He expressed opinions resembling those of other British visitors to America as to the superiority of American methods and the greater energy and ambition of both employers and operatives in the United States. He said that in the steel trade particularly Great Britain was far behind.

In discussing the success of American workmen he asserted that in his judgment their freedom from vested interests and trade-union influences counted for much. He expressed the opinion also that it was not impossible that British manufacturers would have to adopt the American system of trusts. Commenting editorially upon the interview, the Daily Chronicle urges the trade unions to "recognize that the methods suited to the old regime are not suited to the new era of international competition," pointing out that "markets lost today may be lost forever."

GERMANS ALSO FEARFUL.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The managers of the German trans-Atlantic steamship lines are holding conferences to discuss means by which American trusts may be prevented from obtaining control of their lines. In consequence of the number of shares purchased by Americans during the recent depression, the managers fear the American shareholders will appoint American directors.

The Bremen correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger telegraphs that the directorate of the North German Lloyd Steamship company is of opinion that further precautions should be taken against the Americanizing of the great German Atlantic steamship companies, although they assert that their own line is guaranteed against this danger.

In reply to a question a member of the directorate is represented as saying that neither the North German Lloyd nor the Hamburg-American thinks of making Dover a port of call. The interest recently shown by the emperor in that port was purely technical.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails; and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by J. W. Hess, Druggist.
